and the Eastern Shore of Maryland*

Welcome to the 2026 edition of the Delaware Equine Industry Directory. This publication continues to be the single source of reference for equine activities and businesses on the DelMarVa Peninsula. We encourage you to thank our advertisers for supporting the Council's efforts. Your support of their businesses makes the Directory possible.

Our website has undergone a complete restructuring. Please go to www.delawareequinecouncil.com to view the updates, ease of use and the beautiful new look. We will have event registration directly on the site to make your life easier!

The Council continues to provide a variety of benefits to our members as well as to support individuals and organizations whose efforts support our mission. A few of the benefits include the Equine Equipment Program used to purchase farm equipment, discounts at Sherwin-Williams, Office Depot, Office Max and John Deere to name a few.

The Council is an all-volunteer organization that is non-breed or discipline specific that works with various interests, schools, organizations and related businesses to promote the whole industry. I encourage you to become an active member. Please volunteer at functions such as our horse shows, the Member Appreciation Day Ride/Drive, the bi-monthly newsletter, this Directory or any of our other activities.

Sincerely,

Ken

Greetings Equine Community and Friends,

From the beginning of my tenure as Delaware Secretary of Agriculture I have been graciously welcomed by the equine community, which is so well represented by the Delaware Equine Council (DEC). Having been Executive Director of the Delaware Farm Bureau, I know how challenging it is to operate a membership organization. I want to congratulate DEC President Ken Horeis, all the officers and directors, and all the volunteers that contribute to the health and vibrancy of this vital Delaware agricultural sector.

A glance through the Delaware Equine Industry Directory provides an appreciation for the depth and breadth of the industry here in Delaware. The economic impact of the industry is extensive and can be difficult to capture. Thanks go out to those who have participated in the Equine Industry Study being conducted by Dr. Kofi Britwum and Nate Bruce of the University of Delaware. Their report is being compiled as this is being written. I am told participation was up in this survey. This is important, because whether you are a horse owner, breeder, trainer, jockey, if you provide therapy, show horses, ride for pleasure, are an industry supplier, or a veterinarian, whatever role you play, your contributions should be recognized and appreciated for how you enhance the quality of life here in The First State and the vitality of our economy.

You can count on the Delaware Department of Agriculture to support the equine industry and DEC as we welcome the future together! Thanks again!

Sincerely,

Wm. Donald Clifton, II
Secretary of Agriculture

WHAT TO DO IF YOUR HORSE IS LOST

Start this process immediately, a horse can and will travel 10-20 miles a day!

- Call the State Police, the troop closest to the area where your horse is missing.
- Call SPCA.
- Call horse rescues.
- Contact everyone in the vicinity, go door to door.
- Contact local horse organizations and ask for assistance.
- Use internet with emails and websites, i.e. delawareequinecouncil.org
- Call radio and stations and ask for support.
- Contact local feed stores and tack shops, etc.
- Distribute flyers.
- Call Dept. of Ag's Livestock Investigator, Justin Madden at 302-608-4473.

FINDING YOUR HORSE IS THE FIRST PROBLEM

- Identifying your horse may be a second problem.....be proactive. Have recent photos, know distinguishing marks and habits, have copies of papers i.e. coggins and health certificates with you. Talk with your vet about microchips or other forms of identification for your horses.
- Try to be familiar with the area where you are riding, or at least have someone with you who knows the area.

Report Abuse or Neglect to the Office of Animal Welfare at 302-255-4646 option 4
